Board of Ed okays sale of Lakeview to college

The Haliburton County Board of Education has approved the sale of the Lakeview school site to Sir Sandford Fleming College.

At last Tuesday's meeting the trustees passed a motion approving the sale at a price of $390,000.

On Thursday, the Ministry of Education gave the sale its blessing when a delegation from Haliburton County met with ministry officials in Toronto.

The college has agreed to allow the Board to continue housing the Kindergarten classes in the building for a period of two years while arrangements are being made for new facilities.

The board has been renting space in the four-room Lakeview building to the college for several years but late last December announced its intention to take over the entire facility for use as classroom space.

Proceeds from the sale of the property will go towards building new schools to ease crowding

With the sale to the Sir Sandford, the college has now secured permanent accommodation in Haliburton Village.

The sale of the Lakeview property is part of the board's long-term plan to deal with over-crowding in elementary schools in Minden and Haliburton villages.

The money received for Lakeview must be placed in a Capital Reserve Fund and may be used only with ministry approval for new building projects.

Last Thursday, the Haliburton delegation asked ministry officials about the possibility of securing provincial funding to finance new building projects.

Board chairman Len Salvatori was one of the people who met with the ministry last week. He said that Haliburton's request for funding will be reviewed by the government.

Education minister Sean Conway has been invited to visit the area in order to see first hand, the accommodation situation in the two villages.

The board of education is considering two long-term approaches to providing more classroom space.

The first option is to build two new Kindergarten to Grade Three schools, one on the J.D. Hodgson site in Haliburton village, the other on the Archie Stouffer property in Minden.

The other option is to build one new Kindergarten to Grade Eight school to

Developer charged after washout

Charges have been laid against a developer and a contractor in Minden after clay from a Bobcaygeon Road excavation site washed into the Gull River.

Brad Bradamore and Larry Hughes were charged by the Ministry of Natural Resources under the Fisheries Act for allowing material which could endanger spawning areas to enter the river.

Stan Flemming, the ministry's Fish and Wildlife supervisor for the Minden District, said the washout occurred during the mild weather the area experienced during the week of March 12.

Although he doesn't know exactly how much silt and clay was washed into the river, Flemming said he doesn't think there will be any major impact on water quality.

The washout was caused by a large amount of water that collected in the excavation from run-off during the thaw. Flemming said the silt was washed across the road, down McKnight Drive and through a marshy area into the river.

To their credit, Flemming said Bradamore and Hughes reacted quickly to the situation. The night the washout occurred, Flemming said the two men were contacted and they went to the site and installed filter cloths to stop the flow of silt.

Filter cloths allow water to pass through but block soil and clay. The cloths were placed over culverts and in the locations where the silt was flowing from the site.

The ministry also inspected the other two excavation sites along the same stretch of the Bobcaygeon Road, but found that it was just the one site that had experienced the problems.

"The danger has passed," said Flemming. "It was an unfortunate situation, but it did happen."

Bradamore and Hughes are scheduled to appear in Provincial Court in Minden this Friday, April 6. The maximum penalty for the charge under the Fisheries Act is $50,000.

Sunday's Community Enrichment Forum opened with a number of songs performed by Gord Kidd, left, Irwin Asbell, and Rev. Ed Moll. The gathering was held to open a dialogue and build bridges of understanding between individuals of the community representing a variety of ethnic, cultural and linguistic backgrounds.

Forum brings local residents together for dialogue

An effort to bridge the gaps separating individuals, gaps created by race, colour, creed, language or any other reason, is off to a successful start in Minden.

Billed as a Community Enrichment Forum, the informal gathering was held March 25 at the Minden United Church. Reverend Ed Moll and a number of other citizens of the community form the nucleus of this group which he hopes will continue to grow.

Rev. Moll described a number of reasons for the creation of the loosely knit organization. Referring to the events last July when a neo-Nazi/skinhead rally was held in Minden, Moll said this event provided the spark. He also noted that recent municipal council declarations of unilingualism (English) have convinced him and his group of a continuing need for a greater dialogue among differing groups.

"I hope we can discover how our differences can enrich us," he said during his opening remarks. "We are here to share the common thread of our humanity which run through each of us." He told the gathering that one of the aims of the forum should be to, "Create, maintain and discover the richness of cross-cultural relationships."

Moll noticed that around the world human beings continue to kill each other, motivated by distrust and misunderstanding of each other. While the situation is not as serious in this country, he said seeds of mistrust are growing here as well. "One person can make a difference," he commented. "Some may think of it as a problem too big for a group our size to tackle. The key is to think globally and act locally." He said there is no better place to start than here bridging the gaps. "One person can make a difference. We must discover people for what they are, people, not for what they believe in."

He said people often perceive a 'risk' of jeopardizing their own identity by reaching out to others, but if people are comfortable and confident with who they are, the risk no longer exists. "You can only gain by welcoming into your hearts people who are different than yourselves."

Following his brief opening remarks, those in attendance gathered in small groups. Moll suggested that a good way to realize how diverse our community is was for individuals to reveal their own cultural and ethnic background.

As an organizer of the afternoon, Moll said he was extremely pleased with the attendance. He said it indicated to him there was a genuine interest in the community for this type of exchange and said more will be planned in the future.

More teachers needed

Due to increased enrolment and new provincial requirements, the Haliburton County Board of Education has approved the hiring of nine additional elementary teachers for the 1991 school year.

In a joint presentation to the trustees, Director of Education Stuart Baker and Superintendent of Education Dale Robinson outlined the need for the additional staff.

The first factor is a Ministry of Education initiative that provides additional grant money to school boards that have a pupil/teacher ratio of 20 to 1 or less.

The second factor is a large projected increase in enrolment, especially in the villages of Minden and Haliburton, the two areas that already have the largest student populations.

Adding in increased French instruction and providing preparation time for teachers brings the required number of new teachers up to nine.

Baker noted that with a student population of 620 in Minden and 650 in Haliburton, each of the two elementary systems have larger enrolments than the high school.

Supporting this increase are Health Unit statistics which show there were 1,300 new residential lots created in the county in 1989 up from 500 lots created five years ago.

The health unit figures do not include lots serviced by municipal sewer systems or oversized lots.

Of the nine proposed additions to the teaching staff, five will go to Archie Stouffer which is having four classes added, and four will go to Haliburton village.

Baker said the projected enrolment figures are "quite modest" and the increase will continue "unless there is a drastic drop-off in the economy in Haliburton County."

"We can predict, with a great deal of certainty, a heavy enrolment basically in the primary division," said Baker.

He commended J.D. Hodgson principal Doug Devolin for finding room in the school of additional Grade Three classes without having to add any portables.

The board is hiring earlier this year in order to be able to compete with larger boards for qualified teachers. Despite a shortage of teachers in the province, Haliburton County seems to attract applications.

Baker said he hoped the county is as attractive to teachers this year as it was last year.

As well as the nine regular teaching positions, the trustees also approved the hiring of two special education instructors.

Robinson, who coordinates the board's special education program, explained the need to for the staffing increase.

He said there is a need for more special education support service at the school level.

The additional positions will be split up among the various elementary schools. J.D. Hodgson requires a quarter of a full-time position which will also serve the Gooderham school on a demand basis, about half a day a month. Archie Stouffer also require a quarter-time special education position that will serve Dorset as well, but only two days a year.

The Victoria Street School doesn't currently have a special education teacher, and Robinson the board has found that to be a problem. The school will be getting a half-time special education position.

Special education is more sophisticated now, said Robinson and requires more support to have less students in segregated classrooms.

The practice of placing students with special education needs in regular classrooms is known as mainstreaming.

"I don't think the whole system should be mainstreamed," said Robinson. "But the more needs that are met in regular classrooms, the better."

The board will hire an additional special education support person in order to address the problem of insufficient communication in the special education system.

A review of special education in Haliburton County carried out last year, found lack of communication to be the biggest problem. The additional staff member will work with the schools to improve the situation.

Correction

In last week's issue there was an error in the story regarding the budget for the Haliburton Highlands Museum.

The story said the museum director's wage equals the sewage plant operator and the curator makes the same amount as arena staff.

In fact, the museum committee was asking for the wages to be brought up to those levels.

The Times regrets any confusion this error may have caused.

Charting the nation's future

Often it seems that politician events taking place in Ottawa or Queen's Park are far removed and beyond the reach of the average citizen. The feeling of distance is fostered by the "global" nature of the issues under discussion. Most people feel more at home dealing with the familiar.

The controversy surrounding the Meech Lake Accord is one such issue. A vast majority of Canadians didn't bother to question the agreement when it was announced almost three years ago. The fact ten provincial premiers and the prime minister endorsed the proposal encouraged the complacent acceptance. After all, if eleven national leaders can reach a consensus on an issue, there must be nothing to worry about.

However, as the deadline for acceptance of the Accord draws near, and various high profile politicians express concerns about the document, people are starting to wonder if their unquestioning trust was misplaced.

The Meech Lake Accord will result in major changes to the country's Constitution. This is not just minor legislation, but rather basic nation-building material which will affect the country for years to come. Canadians should not take these proposals lightly or without due consideration for their consequences. When, and if the Accord is adopted, it will be extremely difficult to turn back.

For that reason alone, we encourage you to take the time to read the analysis which starts on page five of today's paper. Make the effort to become familiar with what is being proposed. If you find the Accord matches your vision of Canada into the next century, fine. But, if it doesn't, now is the time to speak up. It could be too late after June 23.

Every day when I walk to work I have to go past the mansion, and every time I do, it makes me think about the split-up and I feel bad.

Not so much for the man and the woman. They're adults and there's plenty of loot to go around, so not matter what kind of financial agreement the legal weasels hammer out, neither of them will go without breakfast.

I don't feel bad for the kids from the former marriages either. They're all grown up and on their own--and from what I can see, none too fond of the bickering couple anyway.

No, I don't feel sorry for any of the adults involved. It's the kid, T.C. Every once in a while when I'm going by the mansion, I'll see one of the household retainers taking T.C. for a walk. Sometimes they'll pass right by me, and little T.C. will look up at Did I say 'little' T.C.? Well, that's not quite accurate. T.C. may be just a pre-schooler, but he'd go about 150 pounds buck naked. Which is what he when I see him out for a walk--barefoot and buck naked, if you don't count the leash.

Yes, leash, T.C. is a dog. He's as doggy a dog as the most carnivorous card-carrying canine ever to chase a mailman's ankle.

It's T.C. Puck I'm talking about. He's a six-year old fluffy white Bouvier des Flandres. He is also the adopted ward of Harold and Yolanda, Canada's answer to Caesar and Cleopatra, Donald and Ivana...

Or maybe just Punch and Judy.

In any case, I do get to walk past Maple Leaf Gardens several times a week which is where, off and on, I get to see T.C. Puck padding along from fire hydrant to fire hydrant, towing one of Harold Ballard's two-legged minions behind him. I don't know if it's inherent in the breed or a result of his current family situation but T.C. is the saddest looking mutt I've ever seen.

And that shouldn't be. After all, in addition to being a Bouvier, T.C. belongs to that other elite

Opinion

The Times welcomes signed letters to the editor on subjects of interest to our readers. Short letters are most likely to be chosen for publication, but the use of any material is at the discretion of the editor. The editor reserves the right to edit letters to meet space requirements, for clarity or to avoid obscenity, libel or invasion of privacy.

An analysis of the Meech Lake Accord

As the politicians grapple with the intricacies of the Meech Lake Accord, the Canadian public is becoming more confused and disenchanted with the agreement and what it will mean for the future of the country. Many people know little or nothing about the contents of the Accord, but they are aware of an underlying current of concern and uncertainty this agreement, (an amendment to Canada's Constitution), has generated. Others are objecting to the way the Accord was reached and presented to the Canadian public.

There is no question the Meech Lake Accord, like any other change to such a fundamental document as a nation's constitution, should receive careful scrutiny before being enacted. In this case, for example, certain provisions will dramatically change the nature of the country, changes that will be all but impossible to reverse. For this reason, if for none other, Canadians should be aware of what is being proposed and how it will impact on our nation.

During the month of April, The Times will be reprinting a critical analysis of the Meech Lake Accord as prepared by Marjorie Bowker. While not everyone will necessarily agree with the position Mrs. Bowker takes on some issues, we believe that she has prepared a valuable document which will help to increase the understanding of the implications of the Accord.

The analysis is contained in a pamphlet entitled "The Meech Lake Accord, What It Means to You and Canada", written by Mrs. Bowker in early March. Mrs. Bowker is a retired judge of the Alberta Provincial Court who has undertaken this analysis to stimulate discussion on this topic vital to Canada's future.

The signatories to the Accord have set June 23 as the deadline for acceptance by all provinces. Between now and then, Canadians will hear a great deal about the Accord. The Times hopes the analysis will assist you in understanding the debates and discussions which take place in the next three months.

This opening installment briefly examines the history surrounding the Canadian Constitution and the Meech Lake Accord, the events following its initial signing and what the Accord itself contains.

As always, your letters and comments are welcome.

Preface

The debate over the Meech Lake Accord has been going on for almost three years. Yet the voices being heard are mainly those of politicians, academics and business people. Rarely do we hear from the average Canadian.

Little wonder, when a CBC poll taken last month (February 1990) showed that 71% of Canadians said they knew "nothing" or "not very much" about the content of the Meech Lake Accord. The Accord is designed to change our Constitution. It is not a lengthy document, but it is complicated, and can only be understood in the light of what has gone before.

There is danger that for want of a better understanding, some Canadians may not care what happens, and leave it to politicians to make the decisions. It is, however, our constitution. It is our country. It is our future.

The purpose of this analysis is simply to present the facts, leaving it to Canadians to formulate their own opinion. It is a personal project, entirely self-financed, and the writer is accepting no revenue from any source.

Canada's Present Constitution

Canada's basic constitution is an Act of the British Parliament called the British North America Act of 1867 (now re-named the Constitution Act 1867). Though it has undergone amendments over the years, it is still our basic constitutional document. For example, it establishes the House of Commons and Senate, as well as the composition, procedures and powers of each. It sets up the constitutional structure for the provinces. It stipulates the subjects on which Parliament can pass legislation, and those subjects on which the provinces can legislate. It defines the structure of our Courts. This Act (with amendments) remains in force to this day.

Not until 1982 were there major additions to the Canadian constitution. These consisted of two Acts:

1. The Canada Act 1982 which transferred to the Canadian Parliament the power to amend our constitution — a power which was formerly vested in the British Parliament. (This is commonly referred to as the "patriation" of our constitution.)
2. The Constitution Act 1982 which includes the Canadian Charter of Rights and Freedoms which for the first time entrenches in our constitution protection of individual rights and freedoms including freedom of religion, assembly, association and the press; as well as a variety of other rights (legal, democratic, equality, language, mobility).

It is important to note that the Constitution Act of 1982, which was initiated by the former Liberal government, was passed by Parliament only after widespread public debate, several inter-provincial conferences, public hearings, and even a constitutional reference to the Supreme Court of Canada. In the end, the Quebec premier, Rene Levesque refused to sign the Act, alleging that French interests were insufficiently protected. However, Quebec members of Parliament, by a large majority, voted in its favour, and it is generally agreed that the people of Quebec were in agreement.

The Meech Lake Accord (to be officially called the "Constitutional Amendment 1987") was negotiated by the Conservative government under Prime Minister Brian Mulroney for the stated purpose of setting Quebec's grievances and obtaining its belated signature to the 1982 Constitution Act.

Such is the historical background to the Meech Lake Accord.

How The Meech Lake Accord Came About

The goal of the Meech Lake Accord was a perfectly laudable one — to obtain Quebec's endorsement to the Constitution Act of 1982, from which Quebec had excluded itself.

In May of 1986, the Quebec government under Premier Robert Bourassa presented five demands as conditions for its acceptance of the Constitution.

In August of that year, the Premiers' Conference held in Edmonton agreed that priority must be given to getting Quebec back to the bargaining table. It seems that following this, negotiations did get underway amongst senior government officials with a view to addressing Quebec's concerns.

On April 30, 1987 the First Ministers (the Prime Minister and ten provincial premiers) met at Meech Lake (a government retreat north of Ottawa) to deal with Quebec's demands. It was a brief meeting, though reportedly contentious. In the end, the parties produced a "Draft Statement of Principles" which addressed five of Quebec's concerns, plus two additional elements not previously raised by Quebec. This Statement of Principles, which is only three pages in length, was not made public at the time. The premiers agreed to meet again in five weeks to sign the formal legal document which would embody these principles.

Accordingly, on June 3, 1987, the same group of leaders met at the Langevin Building in Ottawa. There they held a secret all-night 11-hour session discussing the document which was to become the Meech Lake Accord. The premiers had been told not to bring their advisors, and those who did were not allowed to have them present, though species of dogdom—Canus Hirsutus. Also known as Shaggy Dog.

You know about Shaggy Dog stories don't you? My dictionary defines them as stories in which the punchline is totally irrelevant—or, any joke involving talking animals. This may well be the classic Shaggy Dog story:

A man walks into a cosmetic surgeons office and takes off his tight top hat to reveal a full-grown chihuahua sitting on top of his bald head. Startled, the surgeon says 'W-- what's your problem?'

The man stares steadily at the surgeon. The surgeon looks nervously at the man...

The chihuahua says "Doc, I want you to get this man off my rear end."

What? You're still reading? Okay here's another: Hobo walks up to a bartender and says "My good man, I have no money but I do have a talking dog, if I prove it will you treat me to a beer?"

The bartender, bored, agrees. The man turns to his mutt perched on a bar stool beside him and says, "Okay Rex, what's the thing on top of the house that keeps the rain out?"

"Wrrrruffff!"

"And what was the all-time greatest hockey player who ever lived?"

"Wrrrruffff!"

Bartender yells "That's it! Yer a pair o' fakes! Outta my bar, both of ya!"

The pair scurry out the door and down the street, the man shuffling disconsolately, the dog sniffing garbage cans. Suddenly, the dog looks up at the man and says:

"Do you think I should have said 'Wayne Gretzky'?"

Okay, okay...it's not the greatest Shaggy Dog joke ever told, but I'm going to whisper it to T.C. Puck the next time I see him in front of Maple Leaf Gardens.

He looks like one Shaggy Dog that can use all the laughs he can get.

What Meech Lake means to Canada

One interpretation of the effect that the Accord will have on us some of the premiers asked and were allowed to leave the room briefly for consultation. The premiers met in almost total isolation without any opportunity of conferring with cabinet or caucus. In the early morning, Prime Minister Mulroney emerged to say that he and the provincial premiers had re-written the law "while the national slept". It is a fact, however, that the public had not seen the wording of the Accord until after the premiers had committed themselves to it. What was presented to the Canadian people was a deal arrived at in secret after an all-night marathon bargaining session. The nation was soon to be told that the Accord must stand as presented without any amendments.

The process which was followed throughout these events is inconsistent with established democratic procedure for amending a nation's constitution. Such a serious step calls for full and open public debate, along with opportunities for discussion and reflection, with preliminary drafts circulated for public scrutiny, before any final document is approved. None of this happened here.

By way of contrast, the B.N.A. Act of 1867 had its ground-work laid three years earlier at the Charlottetown Conference in 1864, followed by two further conferences in London, England and Quebec City. The Constitution Act of 1982 was preceded by 18 months of meetings, conferences, new proposals, revisions, compromises and court challenges before its terms were finalized.

There is no precedent for achieving sweeping constitutional change in the manner that was attempted with the Meech Lake Accord.

Events Following

The Signing of the Accord

The federal government made it clear from the beginning that it would not allow any changes or amendments to the Accord as signed at Meech Lake. To become law, it needed to be ratified by Parliament and the ten provincial legislatures.

Its passage through Parliament took the following form: A resolution to approve the Accord was presented to the House of Commons in June 1987. After passing first and second readings, it was referred to a Joint Parliamentary Committee, consisting of 17 members (12 of whom were Conservatives). The Committee held 15 days of hearings during the summer in Ottawa. Eighty witnesses were heard during that short period, and 249 briefs were received, many of which opposed the Accord. It should be noted that even before these hearings began, the Prime Minister, in an exclusive interview with the Canadian Press on June 22, 1987, stated that he would not be influenced by any conclusions of this Committee, nor by opposition or other criticism.

Following the Committee hearings, the resolution easily passed third reading in the Commons because of the large Conservative majority. It was then sent on to the Senate which proceeded to hold hearings of its own across the country, following which it returned the Bill to the Commons with extensive recommended changes. These were rejected, and on June 20, 1988 the Meech Lake Accord received final ratification by Parliament.

As for the provincial legislatures, the Accord was quickly ratified by eight of the ten provinces. However, in respect to two provinces, there was a change in government before the Accord was approved.

In New Brunswick in October 1987, a Liberal government under Premier Frank McKenna, won all seats in the provincial legislature replacing the former Conservative government under Premier Hatfield (who had signed the Accord). In Manitoba, in April 1988, the N.D.P. Leader Harold Pawley (who also had signed the Accord) was replaced by a minority Conservative government. The Liberal Leader, Sharon Carstairs, made it clear from the outset that any attempt to ratify the Accord would result in the downfall of the government. Neither of these provinces — New Brunswick or Manitoba — has signed the Accord as of this date (February 1990.)

Marjorie Bowker is a resident of Edmonton-Alberta. A lawyer, she practised law in that city before being appointed a judge of the Provincial Court of Alberta in 1966. She retired in 1983.

She has written a number of papers dealing with provincial court matters. In 1988 she gained national prominence for her analysis of the Canada/US Free Trade Agreement, with her publication "On Guard For Thee". That publication was one of a few to provide a critical over-view of the trade pact and its of those who presented briefs were in favour of the Accord as it stood". Based on these results, the Opposition presented to the Alberta legislature ten well-reasoned suggestions for amendment. However, the Alberta legislature on December 7, 1987 approved the Accord as it stood, which was no surprise given the Conservative substantial majority.

The most serious deficiency is that no national public debate was ever held. This is regrettable because the average citizen cannot be expected to understand the complex implications of a constitutional document such as the Meech Lake Accord without the benefit of informed national debate. We are not talking here about minor legislative amendments, but rather with sweeping constitutional and political changes which will re-shape our nation for generations to come.

What It Says

The Meech Lake Accord is not a lengthy document — slightly more than a dozen pages in all — but it is overlaid with references and cross-references, implications for Canada.

Marjorie Bowker is the wife of Wilbur F. Bowker, now retired, who was for 20 years Dean of Law at the University of Alberta.

Her analysis of the Meech Lake Accord was printed without restriction on its reproduction. She paid to have the first 200 copies produced and then has asked those interested to reproduce them for free distribution or at a minimal charge, not to exceed $4.

The Newfoundland legislature under Premier Peckford was one of the first to ratify the Accord. However, his government has since been replaced by the Liberals under Premier Clyde Wells, who has become one of the most vocal opponents to the Accord and threatens to revoke his province's ratification. For a brief time during January 1990, British Columbia Premier Vander Zalm indicated that he too might be withdrawing his support for the Accord unless changes were made. He has since modified his stand.

Very few provinces held any public hearings before ratifying the Accord. However Manitoba and New Brunswick, which have withheld ratification, each held public hearings, following which they have confirmed their position that they cannot support the Accord without amendments.

As for my own province of Alberta, the Conservative government under Premier Don Getty (one of the most vigorous supporters of the Accord) declined to hold public hearings. The N.D.P. Official Opposition, however, did hold hearings throughout the province in September 1987. A total of 106 oral submissions were made (including one from this writer) plus 25 additional written submissions. The Report dated November 3, 1987, stated that "not one making understanding difficult. Parts of it are poorly drafted, like a patchwork of constitutional amendments. If ratified, it would be called the "Constitution Amendment 1987" and would be added to Canada's constitutional Acts described in Chapter 1.

The purpose of the Accord, as already stated, was to deal with Quebec's grievances arising from 1982 Constitution Act, which Premier Levesque had refused to sign. His successor, Premier Robert Bourassa in 1986 presented five demands to be met before he would sign the Constitution. These original five demands were these:

1. recognition of Quebec as a distinct society;
2. a provincial role in appointments to the Supreme Court;
3. a greater provincial role in immigration;
4. limits on federal power in federal-provincial shared-cost programs;
5. a veto for Quebec on constitutional amendments.

The Meech Lake Accord deals with all five of Quebec's demands and gives effect to them all. Some provisions are said to have even exceeded Quebec's expectations. Granting such special privileges to Quebec would give to Quebec a status not enjoyed by any of the other provinces. Yet the endorsement of all premiers at Meech Lake was essential. In order to obtain approval of the other nine premiers to the Quebec arrangement, the Prime Minister agreed to give similar wide powers to all of the provinces. Not surprisingly, the prospect of such vastly increased provincial powers might well have proved irresistible to the premiers. This may partly explain how consensus was so readily achieved for the Meech Lake Accord. The question is, however — at what cost to Canada?

What the Meech Lake Accord has done is to transfer to all provinces powers which properly belong to the central government, if Canada is to remain a cohesive unified nation. Just as some issues are best resolved at municipal or provincial levels, others are clearly best left to a government that speaks for all Canadians.

Instead of a strong federal system such as we have enjoyed for over a century, Canada could become fragmented into something resembling ten fiefdoms, each headed by its own miniature prime minister. Yet Canada needs a strong national government to speak and act for all Canadians, to be the centre of gravity, to resolve regional disparities and to respond to national crises.

Canadians who wish to retain a strong Canada see the flaws in the Meech Lake agreement, and possible disastrous consequences for our nation.

Even beyond the five Quebec demands, the Meech Lake Accord includes two additional provisions relating to all provinces:

1. the right of provincial governments to make nominations for the Senate;
2. the entrenchment of annual "first ministers' conferences" to initiate future constitutional change.

Perhaps the most troubling provision in the Meech Lake Accord is the granting of a veto to each province and to the federal government concerning major constitutional amendments in the future. Under our present law (1982 Constitution Act), such amendments require the consent of only seven provinces (plus the federal government), provided those provinces represent 50% of the total Canadian population. The Meech Lake Accord with its unanimity rule will make important future changes very difficult.

For those proponents of Senate reform, this rule will make change virtually impossible, as there is little likelihood of achieving unanimity amongst all the provinces on this contentious issue. One wonders why Alberta's Premier Don Getty (for example) so readily signed the Accord, knowing that his long-cherished hope of a Triple-E Senate could be defeated by a single vote.

To summarize the effect of the Meech Lake Accord, there are these over-all considerations: special status for Quebec could weaken our nation. Special powers to all ten provinces could weaken our nation ten-fold. The question is: Will Canada become two nations, or worse still, ten?

(Next week, a closer look at some of the Accord's provisions.)

Reflections

by Dr. David Suzuki

In lectures, I always remind my audience that in spite of our veneer of sophistication, we remain animals.

Many people are offended by this because it violates a sense of difference from and superiority to other animals.

Think of how we use language.

We refer to people who behave horribly as "beasts" and laugh when we make a "monkey" of someone.

It is an insult to say a person is an "ape", stubborn as a "mule" or dumb as an "ox" and each time we use these expressions we elevate ourselves and reinforce our sense of separation from the rest of nature.

It is this belief in our escape from the biological matrix that has got us into trouble.

Take the Great Lakes.

Thirty-five million people live around the lakes that make up the world's largest body of freshwater.

We exploit those waters for transportation, recreation, agriculture and fishing. We use the lakes to absorb the toxic effluent of industry, treated household wastes and agricultural runoff.

And we drink the water.

Last November, the International Joint Commission on the Great Lakes received U.S. and Canadian reports on the effects of high levels of toxic chemicals in Lake Ontario.

Fish are found with high incidence of tumors while eggs of birds that nest around the lakes fail to hatch or produce deformed chicks.

It is recommended that pregnant women not eat fish from Lake Ontario.

Labs use flies and rats as bio-essays for toxicity of chemicals to humans because we know that as biological beings with common evolutionary history, all organisms are very similar.

That's why coal miners took canaries into the pits with them.

When a bird keeled over, the miners didn't sit around debating whether the bird's disease might indicate the air posed a possible hazard to people--they got out as fast as they could.

Yet Health Minister Perrin Beatty's response to the reports on toxic chemicals in Lake Ontario has been to commit $20 million to a five year study to determine whether the water poses a hazard to people.

Beatty seems to assume that people are so different from other animals that tumors in fish and deformities in birds are not sufficient cause for immediate alarm and remedial action.

(It's also a cynical political move because he knows very well that he won't be minister of health in five years so he can put off any action and five years from now won't be accountable for letting the problem get worse.)

Today, canaries are falling all over the world.

Kinsmen and Kinettes are honoured

Minden Kinsmen and Kinettes shared a double celebration March 24.

Two members of the Kinsmen Club were presented with their life membership, while the Kinettes marked 30 years of service to the community.

The Minden Community Centre was filled to capacity as friends, former club members and guests of the Kinsmen and Kinette clubs gathered to pay tribute to the two organizations.

Charter Life member of the Kinette Club, Mabel Deacon, recounted some of the high points of the club's 30 years of service.

She noted that in recent years the club has been a strong supporter of the Minden Hospital, purchasing toys and a rocking chair for the nursery. As well, the Kinettes have lent their support and assistance to a local family with a cystic fibrosis child. Following special training, the Kinettes were able to provide baby-sitting relief service for the family. As well, a bike-a-thon last year helped to boost the club's CF contribution. Thirtieth Anniversary chairman Norma Amyotte led that bike-a-thon with over $800 in pledges.

Kinsmen President Paul Travers paid tribute to the Kinette Club, noting their supportive role and the projects they have undertaken on their own. In recognition of the anniversary, Paul Travers presented the Kinette president, Ruth Travers, with a new chain of office.

Also honoured that evening were two long-standing, hardworking members of the Kinsmen Club. Tom Prentice and Larry Amyotte were presented with their life membership in recognition of their contributions to the local club and Kinsmen's rational objective.

Both have been active members of the Minden Kinsmen, serving as president and in most other offices of the organization.

The gathering was honoured by the presence of Kinsmen founder Hal Rogers. He congratulated the new life members noting that the hour their fellow Kinsmen had bestowed on them reflected their own dedication to the ideals of Kinsmen.

The evening concluded with a dance and fellowship.

Larry Amyotte, right, receives his Kinsmen life membership plaque from the organization's founder Hal Rogers. Larry's wife Norma, looks on as the presentation was made March 24 at the Minden community centre.

sicken and die, we should pay attention.

When beluga whales in the St. Lawrence River die unexpectedly and are so toxic that gloves must be worn to examine them, they are warnings.

Ten thousand seals that die in the North Sea of unknown diseases are modern canaries.

The stunning pictures of our planet that came back from satellites two decades ago showed that air, water and continents make up a continuous, interconnected whole that is our home.

When fire broke out at the Chernobyl nuclear plant, radioisotopes were detected over Sweden within minutes and over the Canadian Arctic within hours. This showed that air is a single, finite system that circulates around the planet.

And all air-breathing organisms exchange atoms in the air so each of us is literally made up of atoms and molecules that were once an integral part of trees, snakes, birds and worms.

It's the same with water—through the cycle of evaporation and condensation, water cartwheels around the earth.

Our bodies are over 70 per cent water by weight and those water molecules in each of us were once part of the Amazon rainforest, the Serengetti plains and the oceans of the world.

Furthermore, as biological beings, we are completely dependent on living animals and plants for every bit of our nutrition.

So we are inextricable linked to all other life forms on earth through the shared atoms and molecules of the air, water and soil.

The physical and biological complexity of our planet is beyond human comprehension and science and technology will never recreate it.

We boast that our intelligence has created culture, science and technology which makes us unique.

Thus, we distance ourselves from an overwhelming biological reality—our total dependence on an intact and pristine biosphere.

It is a strange contradiction for a creature claiming to be intelligent to use air, water and soil—the very keys to survival and health—as a sewer for our powerful technological excreta.

Intelligence and foresight should make us realize that because we are animals, air, water, soil and biodiversity must be protected above all else.

Old Timers help Kinmount trip

A donation from the Coby Islanders Old Timer's Hockey Team is helping to send students from the Kinmount School to Quebec.

Last Thursday, team members George Simmons, Pat Russell and Bill McDonald attended a meeting to present the Grades Seven and Eight students with a cheque for $1,000.

The money didn't come easily however. Nine Kinmount students raised the funds by operating the kitchen at the Minden arena during an Old Timer hockey tournament.

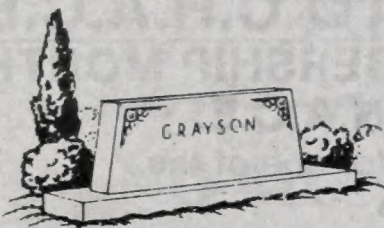

The money will go towards a fund the students are raising to help finance a

May school trip to Quebec City. The students have been raising money through various endeavors since Christmas trying to bring down the individual costs for each student.

Eleven students from the Kinmount School will join up with 16 students from the school in Burnt River for the four day trip.

The students plan to raise additional money by running the kitchen during the Old Timer's 40-team tournament being held on the Easter weekend.

Bat Lake lots rezoned, residents still worried

Minden council has approved the rezoning of a Bat Lake property after residents on the lake failed to produce evidence that further development would be detrimental to the water quality.

The Bat Lake Ratepayers' Association had expressed concern over an application by Monique Yates to rezone a 20-acre parcel of land to Residential Limited Service.

The rezoning will allow Yates to sever the land to create three new lots on the lake.

Council first considered the application at the March 8 meeting and heard a presentation by Bat Lake association president Tom Koivusao against the proposal.

During the last 20 years the number of cottages on the lake has risen to 14 from four, and during that time Koivusao said there has been a steady decline in water quality.

After hearing the concerns, council agreed to give the association two weeks to come up with enough evidence to warrant a freeze on the development.

But on March 19, the township received a letter from Koivusao stating that the province won't interfere with development on the lake.

"The Ministry of the Environment, although sympathetic, was unable to recommend a policy of no development in this matter, relying instead on local offices to handle small local severances and zone amendments," Koivusao said in his letter.

As we do not the the time or the resources to conduct a private lake capacity study at this time, we are obliged to accept the council's decision on Thursday, March 22."

However, Koivusao made it clear that the association is still concerned about over-development of the lake. "We will actively pursue the course of minimal development and subsequent impact on Bat Lake," he said.

Both the Ministry of the Environment and the Ministry of Natural Resources have told the township that they have no objections to further development on the lake.

Council passed the rezoning application by a unanimous vote.

Board asks for funds relieve overcrowding in both villages.

The Victoria Street School in Haliburton was declared a candidate for closure last March, and if that property is sold the money will also be placed in a capital reserve fund for new buildings.

Before the sale of the Lakeview building, the board was planning on housing two additional classes at the site. Now that the college is remaining at Lakeview, all Grade Threes from Haliburton will attend J.D. Hodgson to relieve the over-crowding at the Victoria Street School.

According to a press release issued by the board, the Ministry of Education controls the process which must be followed when school property is sold.

The property must first be offered to a post-secondary educational institution, the municipality in which the building is located, a provincial ministry or a federal ministry.

If there is no interest from any of these agencies the board may then offer the property for sale on the open market at a price determined by a realty appraiser and approved by the ministry.

After 11 years as proprietors of the snack bar, gas bar and convenience store at the top end of Kushog Lake, Joyce and Andy Broersma, have closed the doors for the last time. The business wrapped up on Sunday. The Broersma's will continue to operate rental cabins from the Kushog Korner location and are looking forward to taking things just a little bit easier in the coming year. Joining the proprietors for this farewell shot is staff member Carrie Baird.

Small island could teach lesson about cultural survival

Editor:

A couple of weeks ago after the English Only Resolution Kerfuffle, three letters hit the Letters To The Editor page condemning the same. I couldn't help but wonder if they wrote with such haste when Quebec passed the sign law.

I would note as well, I read an article last week which details the cost of bilingualism in Ontario alone, just for last year at 97.4 million, and that doesn't consider the federal cost which is staggering, or what we all pay everytime we buy a product that the manufacturer had to have packaged in two languages. A fraction of this waste would have built Haliburton's much needed Hospital

Expansion!

And if anyone is concerned that the French, or for that matter any culture that is worth saving will just fade away, or has to be legislated to continue to exist, consider the tiny Caribbean Island of Antigua, barely 10 miles across, with miniscule population, under British rule for nearly 400 years, bombarded by airwaves from the U.S.A. but they still speak their own Patois, and listen to their own music which is about all they ever play on the big R.A. Further they haven't spent a cent, or regulated anything to accomplish this! I rest my case!

winter and spring hundreds of small, wintering birds of different species cover the highways of Haliburton County in search of grit, and during these seasons many are killed by vehicles. Added to the decreasing habitat for birds in Canada and southern climates, there is little doubt these road kills must have an impact upon their numbers. (I wonder if someday we might try an experiment in areas such as highway 35 north and highway 118 west from Canarvon where we place platforms containing grit near the roads in some of the heavily birded areas to see if it might entice them away from the deadly though plentiful source.)

For now, there are three things that anyone who drives can do to help protect this tiny bit of the environment. DRIVE WITH YOUR LIGHTS ON. DON'T EXCEED THE SPEED LIMIT, and slow down when possible if you see

Praise to Minden Hospital staff

Editor:

Minden Hospital staff deserve the highest praise. Monday, March 12, 1990 I entered the hospital with severe chest pains. Nurse Jean Anderson immediately hooked up a heart monitor and within minutes Dr. Dawson was there to diagnose and treat the problem.

I was in the hospital till March 23 and found every person involved in my care to be highly professional and at the same time very warm and concerned about those in their care.

It seems to me that we have a ludicrous situation in this great land of ours.

While one Prime Minister is busy forgiving debts to a Caribbean country ($186 million), our Provincial Minister of Health is reneging on promises made in 1989 to increase the hospital facilities in many communities in Ontario.

Board goes solo with special class

The board of education has decided to operate its Section 25 classroom on its own, after failing to find an agency willing to enter into a partnership.

The classroom is for students who require mental health treatment and who's problems are severe enough to keep them out of regular classrooms.

Previously, the board ran the class in conjunction with Kinark Child and Family services, but due to financial considerations Kinark informed the board that it was ending the partnership as of September 1991.

At last week's board meeting, Superintendent of Education Dale Robinson told the trustees that he attempted to find an agency willing to replace Kinark, but was unable.

Because the board has to continue to operate the class, Robinson said it will have to go it alone.

Robinson said there are presently five children enrolled in the class who can't be placed in regular classes, and four others who are in regular classes but probably should be in the Section 25 class.

With the withdrawal of Kinark from the program, the class will no longer be covered by the Ministry of Education's Section 25 classification. It will now be referred to as a transitional class.

Under Section 25 the board was funded for the cost of providing a teacher for the class. It will now be the board's responsibility to provide a teacher for the transitional class.

Also the board will also have to pay for an educational assistant, a position previously funded by Kinark.

But by moving some high-need students out of the regular classroom and into the transitional class, Robinson said the board may save on educational assistant costs for those students.

"We would have liked to carry on under Section 25, but we couldn't find another agency," said Robinson. "The children in there should not be left high and dry." Most of the students in the program are not yet ready to go back into the regular classroom, said Robinson.

Even though Kinark won't be involved in the operation of the classroom, Robinson said the agency will still provide mental health treatment for those students who require it.

"We are trying to work out a way to carry on with the education," said Robinson. "Kinark and Chimo will support with treatment."

Robinson said the goal of the class will still be to enable students to re-enter a regular classroom setting. He said enrolment in the class will be subject to a strict screening process so it doesn't become a "dumping ground."

The board has just signed an agreement to continue operation of its Section 25 class in Irondale in partnership with Chimo.

Shirley Kuni, right, congratulates the new owner of My Size Fashions, Mabel Clendenning as she takes over the store. The business, located in the Hi-View Plaza, across from Ontario Hydro, changed hands last week. Mabel said she hopes to be able to build on the fine reputation the store has acquired under Shirley's management.

Industrial site proposed

Minden council has given its blessing to a proposal for an industrial park on Scotch Line Road, but has declined an offer to have the township develop the property itself.

The property, owned by James Clement, is located across the road from the Scotch Line landfill site. Clement had originally planned to develop residential lots on the site, but was turned down by the Planning Advisory Committee. The committee's rejection was based on a Ministry of the Environment requirement that residential development not take place within a quarter of a mile of a landfill site.

Clement then tried to sell the property to the township at a price of $150,000 for development of an industrial park.

Although it was agreed that the site would be well suited for industrial development, Reeve Ray Moore says the price wasn't well suited to the township's budget.

As well, Moore says the township wants to locate an industrial park in an area serviced by municipal water and sewer. The Scotch Line property won't be serviced any time in the near future says Moore.

Clement is still trying to sell the land, and the idea of an industrial park. The property has been listed with an Oshawa realtor at a price of $115,000.

A preliminary conceptual plan of the 37 acre industrial park has been drafted, proposing 20 lots each one larger than an acre.

MNR asks for caution when burning outside

Forest fire season is here, and the Ministry of Natural Resources is asking people to take extra precaution when burning outdoors.

Dave Brown of the ministry's Fire Centre in Haliburton says this time of year is particularly bad for fires. With the snow cover gone, the ground cover is comprised mostly of dried grass which lights easily and burns quickly.

So far this year there have been four reported fires, all of them grass fires.

Brown says the area needs warm weather and rain in order so "everything greens up."

Last year, the district experienced its third straight season with an above average number of forest fires. Prolonged period of dry weather resulted in 50 per cent more fires than the 10

A celebration on ice!

Area has three years of high forest fires

Historically, the district usually experiences a bad year, followed by several years with normal numbers of fires. 1989 however, marked the third straight year that the number of fires rose at least 50 per cent above the 10 year average.

During periods when risk of fire is the greatest, the ministry imposes a restricted fire zone where all outdoor fires are banned, except those for cooking or warmth. While taking this measure has been rare in the past, Brown says restricted fire zones where imposed twice during each of the last two years.

Last year 154 hectares were destroyed by fire, a number that is "way above normal," says Brown.

At least half of the fires occur in the spring when there are higher winds and an abundance of dry fuel.

Most of the fires are caused by careless burning of brush and Brown says during this time of year this becomes a major problem. Last year the ministry laid 22 charges in connection with careless burning.

Most of the charges were laid in cases where people left fires unattended, burned without a permit or were burning during the day.

The minimum fine for such an offence is $53, and in some cases the ministry asks the court to make the offender pay the full costs of fighting the fire.

Last year five people were ordered to pay the costs involved when a municipal fire department is called in to fight the fire. The costs ranged from $200 to $600 says Brown.

During this high-risk period, the ministry is recommending that people don't burn grass, and if burning bush make sure the area around the fire is well cleared of dried vegetation which could catch fire and spread.

The ministry cut back on its own fire crews last year and required municipalities to respond to bush and forest fires first.

Brown says the change didn't result in much of a difference in the way fires have been fought in the past. In order to make up for the reduction in ministry fire crews, Brown says crew from Pembroke, Parry Sound and Minden districts were juggled around and sent to the areas of greatest need.

"We were able to keep up with manpower demands," says Brown. The ministry is not planning any major changes in the system for this year.

Sound horn to save birds

a flock on the road. Perhaps most importantly, BEEP YOUR HORN for a second BEFORE you approach them, whenever you can safely do so without alarming other drivers (which is often, on lightly travelled roads). They seem to respond most alarmingly to the noise, whereas they often don't notice a vehicle approaching even with its lights on. Don't be embarrassed when you beep at a lump of snow on the road, as the embarrassment you feel is small compared to the sick feeling of running over a small flock of birds.

Though the devastation goes on all winter, they seem to be particularly slow these days with spring coming on, and we have a tendency to drive faster on the dry roads. This morning over a ten mile stretch of highway I counted seven freshly killed birds. As we aren't likely to give up driving, perhaps we can do a few small things to lighten our impact on the bird populations.

Westside forces third game in play-off

In a dramatic last second scoring effort, Westside Jug City has forced a third and deciding game in the Men's Recreational League play-offs.

The Jug City team was facing Home Hardware at the end of the season, in a best of three final to determine the season's champs. Home claimed the first game and was hoping to wrap up the contest Monday evening with another victory.

Their hopes were dashed however as Sid MacKeigan made one last desperate attempt to break the 3-3 deadlocked game. Skating in just over the Home blue line, he let fly with a slap shot which caught Home goalie Kevin Smith by surprise. The puck sailed past the goaltender and, just as the netting at the back of the cage showed the tell-tale bulge, the buzzer sounded ending the game and ensuring a third play-off game.

While Home Hardware opened the scoring at 11:20 of the first period on a goal by John Fedeski, assisted by Dave Pettes, it was the under-dog Westside crew which dominated the contest. They answered the Home goal with one by Bernie Upton at 5:00. The assists went to Kim Hamilton and Mike Keaney. The period ended with the teams locked in a single goal tie.

Westside scored the only marker of the second period at 12:00. Ben Manuge connected on a

Novice C team turns on heat for final game

by Janet Horsley

Well, the Novice C team ended the Championship game with a lot of energy. Because Bobcaygeon had won the first two games, the boys knew they had to really play hard to stay in.

The Championship game was the best three out of five.

The whole team played excellently. They made Bobcaygeon work. A few times Bobcaygeon got a little frustrated because Minden was making them play so hard, but that only resulted in penalties for them. The Minden team played fair and clean throughout the three games.

At the end of the second period, the score was 1-1.

(more on page 19)

The puck goes flying past the net as Westside goalie Rob Crowe makes a valiant attempt to steer it aside. The deciding game in the best of three final series will be played tonight at the Minden arena.

Both teams played hard in the third period but, unfortunately, Minden was unable to score again. The score at the end of the period was 3-1 for Bobcaygeon.

Congratulations to Bob-caygeon for winning the Championship game.

Goal scored by Minden's Josh Shaw, assisted by Billy Fountain.

Minden played strong and hard throughout the whole year and I would like to leave you with this message from NHL hockey player.

#66 Mario Lemieux, Pittsburgh Penguins: "To every kid who plays and contributes to the game, whether they are a super-star or not.

"The important thing is to do your best and know you've played fair. Your coaches, your teammates, the other teams and the officials are all in the game for the same reason as you are - TO HAVE FUN. So treat them with the same respect that you expect. Remember, if you win but don't play fair, you really don't win at all."

The next game the Novice C's had was for fun against Omemee in Minden on Tuesday, March 27.

Both teams were well matched and played a good game. The first two periods were 0-0, but in the third period Minden scored. When the period ended, the score was 1-0 for Minden.

Nice game guys and we would also like to thank Omemee for the nice Pennants that they brought for the Minden team.

Goal scored by Minden's Anthony Weerdenburg, assisted by Jason Horsley.

Tykes lose a squeaker at Bracebridge tournament

by Janet Horsley

On Saturday, March 17 the Minden Tykes travelled to Bracebridge for a hockey tournament.

The first game was at 10 a.m. against Bracebridge. Both teams were very well matched. Everyone had to play hard if they hoped to win the game. At the end of the third period the score was 2-1 for Minden. Nice game guys.

Both of Minden's goals were scored by Jason Shaw, unassisted.

The next game was at 3 p.m. against Sunderland. This game was certainly exciting for the people watching and for the Minden team because they had to win to go on. At the end of the second period the score was 2-1 for Sunderland this meant Minden had to dig in their skates.

A few minutes into the game Minden Tykes tied everything up. But unfortunately Sunderland got another goal making it 3-2. The Minden boys tried hard taking many shot on the Sunderland goalie. With about a minute left, Minden's Josh Shaw got a breakaway, everyone thinking, yes we're going to tie it up again. Well, Josh shot hard on the goal but unfortunately the puck went right over the net. Nice try. So when the game ended it was 3-2 for Sunderland.

Very nice game guys. Goals made by Minden's Danny Nielson, assisted by Josh Shaw and Josh Shaw, unassisted.

The Minden Tykes would also like to thank Bracebridge for inviting them. We had a great time. Thanks.

3 wins clinch Novice victory

by Mel Flood

Minden O.M.H.A. Novices travelled to Bancroft to a novice tournament on Saturday, March 24th, which they were invited to. The boys put it altogether, passing, scoring and skating both ways. Brian you had to see if to believe it. The score of the games were 7-0, 9-0 and 4-2 to win the "A" Division championship. This was a total team effort. The following is the scoring for the tournament: Ryan Anderson; 8 goals, 2 assists. Nicholas Kulas; 4 goals, 3 assists. Chris Neilsen 1 goal, 2 assists. Chris Kerr; 2 goals, 2 assists. Cameron Neville; 2 goals, 1 assist. Chris Little; pass from Sid MacKeigan and Jeff Campbell. Both teams played a fast brand of hockey which became a little chippy from time to time.

1 goal, 2 assists. Danny Vanderlip; 1 goal 2 assists. Philip Daniels; 1 goal, 1 assist. Corey Casey; 2 assists. Clay Davis; 2 assists. Wayne Kernohan; 1 assist.

Into the third period, Westside secured their lead with a goal by Mark Lunn on a pass from Ben Manuge and Sid McKeigan at 5:15. The team seemed to be in control and prepared to coast to an easy victory. However, Home was able to notch two quick goals to lock the score at 3-3. Scoring for Home were Scott

Hamilton from Barry Shaw at 4:42 and the tying effort from Brian Marquardt at 1:27. Marquardt's goal was unassisted and appeared to be the key the Home team needed to force an overtime period. However, as the clock counted down the seconds to the end of regulation time, MacKeigan found the mark and put the game on ice for Westside.

The teams take to the ice tonight at 8 p.m. for the final game in the series. If last week's effort is any indication, fans should be in for an interesting evening of hockey action.

Pianist Doris entertains during home Happy Hour

It looks as though spring is just around the corner. We hope so!

As usual Thursday was tea party day. The Ladies of the Pentecostal Church, Allsaw prepared and served the tea. It was delicious and we all enjoyed it very much. After the lunch the ladies entertained with a hymn sing with the residents joining in. The residents enjoyed the tea party and the hymn sing and thank you all immensely.

In the evening there was bingo called by Roger Yearwood, who is a good caller. The residents who attended thank him greatly for calling and giving us an enjoyable evening.

Friday was Happy Hour. There was a large crowd who were entertained by Doris on the piano, Bill Payne guitar and singing, Eldon Deacon on guitar and singing, also playing the banjo, George Smith violin and Charlie Hadley bass fiddle. The volunteers were Ellen and Don Holden, who attended the needs of the residents and friends. We thank everyone sincerely. We also thank Jean Taylor and Mary Smith for their hard work in arranging the tables and chairs for all our events.

Mrs. Marjory Shuyler who has been in hospital, she had her hip redone has returned to Hyland Crest. We hope it will be better now.

Doris Robertson has gone to Florida for a couple of weeks.

Lorne and Charlotte Fry had dinner Saturday in the tuck shop with their son Jack and his new wife Linda (English) who have just returned from their three week honeymoon in Florida. The residents and staff wish them many years of happiness.

May Horsley had her daughter and husband Lynn and David Henderson to dinner with her on Sunday.

Vera Archer had two ladies who worked for her in the Kosy Korner restaurant in Haliburton and Ray, one of the ladies' husbands had a visit with her Sunday.

Rev. John Burgess had the Chapel service Sunday with Alice Jones playing the organ. There were not as many as last week but there was a very good number. Thank you, you are both appreciated.

Senior League

by Winnifred Barnum.

Monday at noon Ray Jenkins and his wife were here and Ray played the piano for us. Thank you Ray.

Silverts Clothing were here on Monday with clothing for both men and women. They carry very nice merchandise and they gave us a ten percent discount.

Evelyn Coleman came for bible study but a dear friend's funeral was that afternoon (Monday) that she wished to attend and then go to Peterborough Hospital to see her husband who is ill, so we cancelled the bible study for Monday. We sincerely hope for a speedy recovery for Mr. Coleman.

Ruth and Alan Rice came Monday night to show films in the auditorium. The movies were "Winters Wild Life" and "Brown Wolfe". We enjoyed seeing them. Each film we see, we learn something different about the nature of the world. The films are very informative and we really appreciate Ruth and Allan showing them to us.

Kinmount Anglican Church had the service in the Chapel Tuesday morning with Rev. Dawn Gilby conducting the service. We wish to thank you very much.

Tuesday afternoon

Rhoda Francis organized a group to bring their pets in to the auditorium so the residents could pet, touch and hold them. There were all sizes of dogs, kittens, rabbits, and goats. Those who came with their pets were Rhonda Francis, Cathy Ridsdale, Myrlene Foster, Cathy Fisher, Joan Bunn and Louise Webber she had a pair of Siamese kittens. The residents certainly enjoyed these pets. Thank you all for making this possible.

Verna Jarvis' birthday was March 28 and we all wish her a happy birthday and many more to come. Her two daughters Muriel and Marion were here to see her on her birthday.

May Horsley had Nila and Marion to visit Wednesday.

(In last week's report, it was mentioned that Harold Upton took the service. The service was in fact conducted by Mary Nesbitt and Elsie McPhail.)

Every player contributed to Novice tournament win

(from page 19)

Every player was involved in the scoring except goalie Shane Flood who was ready when called upon to make the save and Danny Jordan was there to cheer on his teammates. Well done boys.

The boys on the team have asked me to thank Brian Shaw - coach, Bob Wells - Manager, Tim Vezina-trainer, The Times - sponsor, Remax for the new sweaters, Sue Little and Bobbie Flood for the delicious birthday cakes and pop, Gerry and Norma Jordon for the tickets to the Leaf game and John Wells for his help and to the moms and dads.

The boys thank you for making this an enjoyable hockey season. I would like to add my thanks to everyone for their cooperation and help.

Skaters shine in Fenelon Falls

On Saturday, March 24, 1990 eight skaters from the Minden Skating Club attended the first annual Fenelon Follies skating competition held in Fenelon Falls. This competition was for Canskate level skaters and those who have not yet passed any Freeskating test. For some of the skaters this was their first time competing.

Because of the level of skating in this competition, there were no flights.

FOREST FIRES

BURN MORE THAN TREES

During 1989, 50 forest fires occurred in the Haliburton and Minden areas. The months of April and May are the most dangerous time. Dead grass and leaves will allow a fire to spread very quickly resulting in the potential loss of life, dwellings and forested land.

Before you burn your grass, brush or debris, remember these important points:

1. You must obtain a fire permit;
2. Ensure that a responsible person tends the fire;
3. Keep the fire under control;
4. Upon completion, put your fire dead out. Even if it appears to be out, stir it, and drown it with water, again and again, until you're sure it is out.
5. No burning allowed between 10:00 a.m. and 6:00 p.m.
(with the exception of Industrial Permits)

During the fire season (April 1st to October 31st) the Forest Fires Prevention Act requires you to obtain a permit to be kept at the burning site and shown to an officer upon request. If you don't, you could be fined up to $1,000.00, imprisonment up to three months and liable for any costs and expenses involved in extinguishing a resulting fire.

No, THEY'RE NOT BAG LADIES: Susan Carr, left and Sara Ladurantaye proudly display the results of the used clothes depot they organized at Archie Stouffer Elementary School last week.

Student's clothes bin a success

Two Archie Stouffer students managed to combine a concern for the environment with a desire to help other people.

Sara Ladurantaye and Susan Carr organized a used clothes bin at the school, and every day last week people came in and deposited unwanted items.

"We didn't think it would be this successful," said Sara gesturing at the bags and boxes of clothes piled in the hall outside the office. For each of the five days, the projected yeiled about 10 garbage bags full of clothes.

The idea started as a way to help out needy people by collecting used clothes, but it also served as another method of recycling.

The clothes that were collected are being donated to the 4C's in Haliburton. The effort was so successful, the girls are planning to hold a second depot in late April or early May.

Assistance available for Canada's war veterans

Canada has been a direct participant in three major wars during this century. More than 1,500,000 Canadian men and women served the cause of peace and freedom in the two World Wars and in Korea. Of these, more than 110,000 died and 200,000 were wounded. In 1989, the estimated veteran population was 593,000 men and 40,000 women.

Over the years, the problems, needs and wants of veterans have shifted from those of rehabilitation and re-establishment, to problems associated with aging, such as increasing ill-health, frailty and a loss of mobility.

Canada, having a long tradition of caring for her veterans, has attempted to keep abreast of their changing needs by becoming involved in the development of new health care programs. In 1981, the decision was made to shift the focus from economic support to health and social programs. An example of the Department's commitment to veterans was the introduction of the Veterans Independence Program, which enables a veteran to remain in his or her own home and community. This program is widely considered to be among the most progressive and successful approaches to meeting the needs of the elderly.

The Department is also striving to improve the delivery of its wide range of health benefits and services. For some, aging brings an inability to cope with bureaucratic processes. The health needs of these people are immediate and require immediate responses.

To assist in meeting these needs, the Department is now launching a new process for the provision and administration of treatment benefits. This initiative is called the Treatment Accounts Processing System (TAPS).

Under the new system, eligible veterans will have a personalized card identifying them as clients of Veterans Affairs Canada. The card will indicate the programs under which the veteran is entitled to receive services or supplies paid for by the Department. All the veteran has to do to obtain the benefits is go to a health care supplier and by Bill Scott, M.P.

present the ID card along with a medical prescription and/or recommendation. The veteran will no longer be required to obtain pre-authorization for most health care needs, and the supplier will be guaranteed prompt payment.

The Department has conducted a successful pilot project with Green Shield Prepaid Services Inc. since 1987 in the Ontario Region. The pilot project demonstrated that TAPS provides a significant improvement in the timeliness and quality of service to our clients and allows a much improved turn-around time in the payment of supplier accounts.

The Ontario Regional Client Inquiry Unit has been set up to provide veterans with prompt information regarding the 14 health care programs covered under TAPS. The staff of the Client Inquiry Unit is specially trained to answer questions about veterans' entitlement to health care services and benefits.

The Client Inquiry Unit can be contacted, without charge, by dialing the number shown on the ID card beside "Client Info". The toll free telephone number for area codes 416, 519, 613 and 705 is 1-800-387-1919.

Grant for Haliburton day care

John Eakins, MPP for Victoria-Haliburton, last week announced $122,700 annually to Wee Care Day Care, in the village of Haliburton, toward subsidies for up to 30 child care spaces. The announcement was made on behalf of Charles Beer, Ontario's Minister of Community and Social Services.

Eakins said that the ministry resources represent up to 80 per cent of the cost of approximately 30 spaces for eligible families assessed to be in financial need. Wee Care will be responsible for the remainder through user fees and fund-raising activities. Wee Care Day Care is licensed to provide care for 10 toddlers and 48 pre-schoolers.

"This is an excellent example of the Ontario government's efforts to increase the supply of affordable child care throughout the province," said Eakins. "I'm pleased that Mr. Beer's ministry is able to provide this practical assistance toward child care costs for low income, single parents and working parents."

Wee Care Day Care is a non-profit child care centre. It is administered by a volunteer board of directors made up of parents and other members from the community.

Funding to increase the number of child care spaces across Ontario is one of the priorities contained in the ministry's "New Directions for Child Care."

Grant will assist Dysart planning

John Eakins, MPP for Victoria-Haliburton, last week announced that the Townships of Dysart, Bruton, Clyde, Dudley, Eyre, Guilford, Harburn, Harcourt and Havelock will receive total provincial funding of $13,358 to update the official plan and zoning bylaws with a view to facilitating more housing development.

The funding is provided under the Ministry of Municipal Affairs' community planning grant program.

"I'm pleased the Townships are taking this initiative," Eakins said.

Waterways pose hazard during spring run-off

The Minden office of the Ministry of Natural Resources warns that many of the rivers and streams in Minden District are subject to flooding during the spring freshet. Because the ground is still frozen at this time of year, even a short downpour will run off directly into the watercourses creating short flash flood conditions.

Unfortunately, along with the damage that can occur to property and structures, the fast moving frigid water also passes a threat to personal safety.

Children especially are drawn to running water and we have all seen instances of children playing along the banks of a swollen creek. This natural adventure playground, however, all to often turns into a scene of tragedy.

The obvious drowning hazard posed by the floodwater is compounded by the risk of Hypothermia which is the loss of body heat associated with the exposure to cold temperatures. It does not have to be sub-zero weather to feel the effects of Hypothermia. In water, at this time of year, the onslaught of Hypothermia would be rapid.

Spring Floods, and flooding brought on by major storms, are a natural occurrence. We, at the Ministry of Natural Resources, Minden District, in co-operation with your local municipalities, try through zoning and building regulations to reduce property and structural damage caused by flooding. We need your help however, to ensure that the needless tragedy of the loss of a loved one does not strike a family in this area.

CARD OF THANKS

The family of the late Ernest "Jack" Hills would like to express their heartfelt appreciation to all the friends and associates of Jack who made this time of sorrow so much easier for those of us who so dearly loved a wonderful husband, father and grandfather. Your flowers, donations and cards of sympathy have comforted us in our grief with the warmth of friendship and the deep sense of community which so engaged Jack in the service of the people who contribute to the quality of life in the area in which we live. A special thanks to Gord Monk, whose kindness and assistance so greatly served to ease the anguish of our loss, and to Rev. Dawn Gilby whose spiritual strength was such a comfort to our family.

Joyce Hills & family

Many thanks to friends, relatives, and neighbours for their cards, offers of help and many caring phone calls during my recent hospitalization.

Gord Samells

We would like to thank the Kinette Club of Minden for the beautiful silver tray and our family for the lovely dinner and gifts they gave us for our 25th Anniversary. A special thanks to Mom & Dad.

Tom & Marg Prentice

CARD OF THANKS

I would like to thank the Kinsmen Club of Minden for the great honour they bestowed upon me in making me a Life Member. Also to my family and friends thanks for coming and sharing such a happy occasion with me. Thanks again to everyone.

Tom Prentice

We wish to express our appreciation to friends, Rev. Gilby, and the members of St. James' and St. Lukes' congregation for their expression of sympathy during our recent bereavement.

Bill & Lorraine Campbell

In our previous card of thanks, we were very sorry to have omitted the competent service of the VON whose visits were always enjoyed and the Haliburton County Home Care and Support Services. A very special thank you to Mrs. Lois Titus for all her kindness and attention.

Sandy Stewart at Marjorie Cook

Ron and Dorothy Robinson wish to thank their children, grandchildren, relatives, and friends for the wonderful 40th wedding party held for them at Club 35 on Saturday, March 24. Thank you all for making this occasion even more special. We love you all.

I sincerely wish to thank all the kind people who sent me cards and made phone calls wishing me well during my recent stay in hospital. Also a sincere thanks to Dr. H.E. Good and Dr. Beamer.
